

Sign up for Link and Learn - Our new time-limited match-making service

For Your Path in Research we're launching Link and Learn, a new time-limited matchmaking service connecting public health and social care practitioners with researchers in the field. This is the ideal way for anyone new to public health and social care research to gain unique insight, exchange experiences, ask questions.

By signing up for Link and Learn, research beginners can find out more about internships and placements available, where to access research findings expressed in plain English, and many simple ways to get involved. Link and Learn is perfect for social care and public health practitioners that are new to research.

If you're a public health or social care practitioner please select "mentee". If you're an experienced public health or social care practitioner please select "mentor".
